ors in 1902 from the Textile Department of the institution at the age of 18, being perhaps the youngest student ever to finish the course.

Mr. Jennings was an untiring worker and a thorough master of details. His rapid rise in the mill industry was due to these two qualities and the further characteristic—loyalty to duty. He believed in hard work, and was successful in inspiring those under him with the same spirit. He was a loyal friend and a man of strict integrity. Those who knew him best loved him deeply and trusted him implicitly. His death is a great loss to Union, and the city is in mourning today. Harry B. Jennings was President and General Manager of the Union Buffalo Mills Co. and Vice-President of other manufacturing companies in South Carolina.
