of Potomac; a brother, Clarence Rollins Jones, of Augusta, Ga., who was reared by adoptive parents; a sister, Rubye Wingard, of Bishopville, S.C., and six grandsons.

O. Harold Folk, 68, a former government official, a retired colonel in the Army Reserves and the president of Harold Folk Enterprises, which operates a number of businesses, died July 26 at his home in Washington. He had a heart ailment.

Mr. Folk was born in Moselle, S.C. He graduated from what is now Clemson University and took a master's degree at the University of Virginia. In 1938 he moved to Washington and worked for the Agriculture Department.

During World War II, Mr. Folk was called to active duty in the Army and assigned to Selective Service headquarters here. He remained in the Reserves after the war and rose to command the Reserve Selective Service unit. He retired in the mid-1970s as a colonel.

In 1946, Mr. Folk joined the World Bank and specialized in Middle Eastern affairs. From 1960 to 1962, he was an adviser to King Saud of Saudi Arabia. He then went to work for the Agency for International Development, where he was associate assistant administrator and chairman of the U.S. Loan Committee for Economic Development Abroad.

In 1968, he left the government and founded his own company, which operates United Buying Services, UBS Travel, UBS Insurance and Daystar Press.

Mr. Folk was a member of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church and a former elder of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. He was a 32nd degree Mason and a potentate of the Almas Temple of the Shrine.

He received the Distinguished Service Award and the Gold Medal from the Selective Service System.

Survivors include his wife, May Day Wyatt Folk, of Washington; three daughters, May Day Taylor, of Chevy Chase, Ruth Davidson, of Greer, S.C., and Frances Zygmont, MRS. MINNIE O. FOLK.

Mrs. Minnie O. Folk, daughter of J. J. Folk and wife of E. C. Folk, was born in Colleton county, South Carolina, on the 25th day of November, 1868, and died in Orange, Texas, on the 15th of September, 1895. Her mother died on the Brasos river, in Texas, in 1869 and Minnie was brought back in her father's arms and was raised and educated among her relatives in the Folk neighborhood of Colleton county, South Carolina, and as a remarkable coincidence her surviving husband has now brought her two infants, Mahala and Maggie, in his arms to be raised in a similar way, and they are now in the good hands and kind home of their grandmother, Mrs. Folk of Hampton county.

Minnie's family, on all sides, are excellent and noble people and she was inherently of noble character, but cultivated a quiet, modest, unassuming, loving and amiable disposition and lived a most beautiful and exemplary life. As a daughter, scholar, friend, wife and mother, she was obedient, devoted and affectionate, and

"None knew her but to love her; None named her but to praise."

She was a consistent and zealous member of the Methodist church, at Wesley Chapel, and was of the deepest toned piety, and manifested an abiding faith in the merits of a Crucified Redeemer. She lived right and she died right, and although her spirit's departure was far away from kindred and the scenes of her childhood and the beautiful cemetery of her church, she nevertheless died among God's people and the Christian ministrations of Dr. Hadsy, Mrs. Call, Mrs. Kipler, Mrs. Sims and others, will ever be cherished in grateful remembrance. Her husband's heart is sad, but earth has no sorrow which heaven cannot heal. He passes the now still and hushed place where once the genial smile and loving voice cheered and greeted, but he now

"Feels like one who treads alone
Some banquet hall deserted;
Whose lights have fled; whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed."

May Him who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus Christ, who, when he was here, spoke words of comfort to the bereaved, now by the Holy Ghost comfort his mourning heart and may they have reunion in the home of the blessed.

"Asleep in Jesus far from thee;
Thy kindred and their graves may be,
But thine is still a blessed sleep
From which none ever wake to weep."

W. H. DOWLING.
