HERITAGE LIBRARY FOUNDATION & HHI HISTORICAL SOCIETY UNITE

Details of the combining of Hilton Head Island's two historic preservation and education organizations can be found in a special center section of this issue.

Beginning on Page Five is a four page pull out section describing the coming together of the HHI Historical Society formed in 1961 and The Heritage Library Foundation, founded in 1997.

These two non-profits based on Hilton Head Island specialize in preserving the historic assets of the island and the documents and other records detailing the past history of the Lowcountry, South Carolina, and the United States with an emphasis on the histories and cultures of the inhabitants.

FOUNDATION LAUNCHES BUILDING FUND WITH GRANT FROM LOCAL WRITERS GROUP

August 17th, at a brief ceremony in the Reading Room of the Heritage Library, officers of the Island Writers' Network presented the Heritage Library Foundation with a check for $1,000.00. This gift from Hilton Head Island's première group of active writers effectively launched the Foundation's Capital Funds Account designed to eventually make possible the design and construction of a permanent home for The Heritage Library Foundation in a building of its own on Hilton Head Island.

In presenting the grant check Kathy Wall, local writer, author of the Bay Tanner Mysteries, and Treasurer of IWN, called their grant a token of appreciation for the Library's providing a home for the Writers regular monthly meetings over the last six years and housing the group's hundred plus books on writing and publishing (Continued on page 10)

Pam Bredin is taking a well earned sabbatical so if you are interested in volunteering or participating in the training call Gwen 689-9558 or leave a message at the Library.

Bob Loper and Lyman Wooster have started to volunteer. Bob will be filling in on a varied schedule while he is in training. Lyman will be learning some of the researching techniques our librarians use to help our patrons. Come join us.

As researchers, beginning or advanced, be sure to ask the Librarians for help if you are having trouble with any of our computers, vertical files or finding books in the stacks.

Again welcome and continue to spread the word!

The Island at the Center of the World—The Epic Story of Dutch Manhattan and the Forgotten Colony that shaped America—by Russell Shorto

Reviewed by Bill Altstaetter

Thanks go to Alice Baker, a recent addition to the library's volunteer staff for introducing us to the world of Henry Hudson, Peter Minuit (pronounced "Min – wee), and Peter Stuyvesant, all names from the past we more or less recognize; and to Adriaen van der Donck, which most of us don't.

Russell Shorto brings these men, their families, associates, friends and foes to life painting a portrait in words as vividly as any of works of Rembrandt or Vermeer. For the serious student of America's early colonial past or for fans of the historical novel, this 384 page paperback is, simply put, a great read.

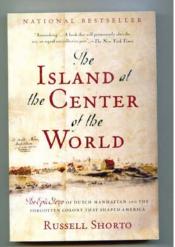

Shorto draws heavily upon the translation work of the New Netherland Project at the New York State Library. The project began in 1974 under the auspices of Nelson Rockefeller as he was leaving the New York governorship for his sojourn in Washington, DC as President

GIFTS FROM GENEROUS DONORS MAKE A SUBSTANTIAL AND LASTING DIFFERENCE TO THE HERITAGE LIBRARY FOUNDATION

In the Spring issue of Heritage Library News we offered our members and friends the opportunity to help the Library by contributing to the purchase of several items for the Library. The response was immediate and we would like to thank Allyson and Joe Harden, Jean Pontarelli and an anonymous donor for making possible the addition of those items to the Library. The new shelveing for the periodicals is in place and the Front Desk area has been improved with the removal of the old record bin. This type of support means a great deal to the life of the Library. Again, our thanks to each of you.

Special thanks are also due for generous gifts of books and papers from the personal collections of two Hilton Head Islanders, Louise Woodruff and Paul Thompson resulting in significant increases to the history collections of The Heritage Library.

Many of Louise's books came from a bequest to her from a lifelong friend and fellow resident of Sea Pines and dealt with the Cold War period of the last half of the 20th Century.

Representative titles include: A History of Russia, Russia Since 1917, Russia and the West Under Lenin and Stalin, The Secret War and The Night Watch. Several other books of interest to the present day history student are The March of Democracy from Civil War to World Power and A History of Latin America.

Books from Paul include: The Minute Book of Sussex Co., NJ – Court Records 1767-1766, Early Families of Your County, PA, Passengers & Ships Prior to 1684 Penn's Colony – Vol.1, Genealoy of Early Settlers in Trenton and Ewing, NJ, and Susquehanna's Indians. Paul also provided a number of manuscript documents enhancing our vertical files Documents Collection.

To the very thoughtful friends of the Heritage Library—

Thanks!

Have you read something recently worthy of passing along to your fellow members? Would you like to see it added to the library's collection?

President's Column Bill Altstaetter

This is my first message to the combined membership. Welcome to our friends and new members from the ranks of the HHI Historical Society. Welcome to all.

We are planning a special reception Sunday, afternoon, September 11th, Patriot Day, to show those of you who have not already visited us, the Foundation's facilities and answer any questions you may have about what you may expect in the way of programs and activities in the fields of American History, historic preservation, education, and research in the upcoming months.

When you hear what we have planned, we hope some of you will be excited enough to want to take an active role in the preservation of Hilton Head Island's historic past. We are extremely pleased and proud that the Foundation is your new home.

Should your schedule not permit the 9/11 Sunday with us, stop in anytime and we'll be delighted to show you around. Also watch the pages of the Heritage Library News for the

Foundation Sets Goals for 2005 Annual Funds Drive

Target Set at $35,000.00 for Operations and $15,000 for Capital and Endowments

Management set the 2005 funds campaign goals during the recently concluded August budget meetings at $35,000 for operations and $15,000 for capital programs.

The campaign begins in earnest in early September following Labor Day and is set to conclude in time for Thanksgiving.

Funds raised for annual operations cover the costs of rent, utilities, internet and computing services, insurance and other general expenses. Capital programs include the new Building Fund kicked off with the recent $1,000 grant from Island Writers' Network, the Book Purchase Fund aimed at improving the Library's collections, and the Endowment Fund set up to provide financial security for the future of the Foundation and its operating divisions.

In presenting the budget, President Altstaetter remarked that with a membership base of some 450, if each contributed $150 the goal would be easily reached, in fact surpassed.

The Zion Chapel of Ease Cemetery at the intersection of Mathews Drive and William Hilton Parkway at Folly Field Road contain graves of a number of the Island's earliest European and American residents. Among others, it is the last resting place of Charles Davant, the only Hilton Head islander known to have been killed on Hilton Head during the Revolutionary War. The graves of other Revolutionary War patriots also may be visited at the cemetery. The Baynard Mausoleum located on the site is the oldest permanent man-made structure more or less intact remaining on Hilton Head.

Fort Mitchel, located within the confines of Hilton Head Plantation adjacent to The Old Fort Pub Restaurant, is the second historic site owned by the Historical Society. It dates from the early days of the Union occupation of Hilton Head Island in November of 1861, when artillery batteries were constructed to protect the approaches to Port Royal Sound through Skull Creek from the advance of Confederate gun boats based at Savannah. Though heavily overgrown by trees and brush, remains of the earthen works may be viewed from a walking path which winds throughout the site.

Many of the island's historic roadside markers have been placed through

Chronicles of The Hilton Head Island Historical Society

The archives of The Hilton Head Island Historical Society are rich with stories of the origins of Hilton Head Island and of the lives and times of its residents. The manuscripts and documents, records and papers of the Society's thirty-five years on Hilton Head are housed at The Heritage Library and are available for research in the Manuscripts and Documents Collection. To view this collection contact G. Norma Harberger, Archivist, at 843-686-6560.

Selections from the archives of the Society will from time to time appear on these pages under the heading "Chronicles of The Hilton Head Island Historical Society."

Zion Chapel of Ease – Hilton Head Island

By Rev. Rev. E. H. Peeples

St Luke's Parish, Granville County, was established by an Act of the Colonial Assembly passed 23 May 1767. It had formerly been a part of St. Helena's Parish, as was Prince William Parish which had been detached 1745. Appointed commissioners for erecting a Parish Church and Parsonage-House in such part of the Parish as they should deem proper, were Daniel Heyward, John Heyward, Daniel Pepper, Richard Proctor, John Garvey, William Hazard and Stephen Drayton.

However, nothing was done until after the Revolutionary War when William Hort settled his family on the May River in 1786 and was joined by John Bull, James Garbery, George Hipp, Jacob Guerard and Daniel Stevens in building a parish church on four acres given by John Bull. An Act of Incorporation was secured from the Legislature 29 Feb 1788.

Dalcho reports that through the influence of Captain (John) Stoney and Mr. (Isaac) Fripp "another congregation was formed and a church of wood, on a brick foundation,

Baynard Mausoleum, oldest remaining building from the island's Colonial Period

40x30 ft." was built on Hilton (Head) Island. Divine Service was performed alternately at each church (St. Luke's Parish church and Zion Chapel of Ease), and since there was no Parsonage, the Minister resided with his parishioners.

The Rev. William Eastwick Graham was among the first to officiate at Zion Chapel of Ease for he had purchased a plantation on Hilton Head just south of Fish Haul Plantation, the home of his uncle, Captain William Pope, Sr. Mr. Graham had been sent to South Carolina in 1775 by the Bishop of London to be Rector of Prince William Parish and early espoused the American cause with the result that General Provost burned his Parish Church in 1779 following the unsuccessful siege of Savannah. His niece, Elizabeth Mosse, married Captain Jack Stoney's older son, James, in 1793.

In 1798 he was elected Rector of St. Helena's Parish where he died in October 1800.

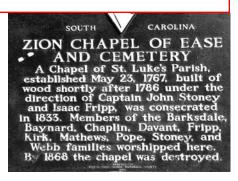

However, the first rector of St. Luke's Parish was the Rev. Andrew McCulley, elected 1791. He represented the Parish at the 9th Convention of the Diocese held 18-20 Oct. 1791 in St. Michael's Church Charleston and at the 10th Convention held there in October 1792. He was succeeded briefly by the Rev. John O'Donnell.

At the 22nd Convention of the Diocese in Feb. 1809 the Rev. Dr. William Percy, Rector of St. Michael's, Charleston, reported that the churches on St. Helena's Island and Hilton Head Island being without a minister, he had visited them and held Divine Services.

Then on 27 April 1811 the Rev. Philip Mathews was elected Rector of the Parish and on 6 March 1812 was also elected Rector of St. Helena's Church, St. Helena's Island. At this point he married Rebecca Davant (1793-1859) daughter of James and Lydia (Page) Davant of Hilton Head, both of whom are buried in Zion Cemetery, and the young couple settled on nearby 600-acre Sand Hill Plantation, eventually acquiring also 500-acre Folly Field Plantation. Mr. Mathews apparently soon resigned the rectorship of St. Luke's Church, limiting his work to Hilton Head Island and St. Helena's Island each of which by this time was considered an independent parish. He represented these two churches at the 26th Convention of the Diocese in February 1814, reporting 4 baptisms and 3 funerals on Hilton Head In the preceding year. His daughter, Sarah L. Mathews was born in 1815 and duly baptized in Zion Chapel. His son, Theodore Dehon Mathews, named for his father's ecclesiastic superior, the Rt. Rev. Theodore Dehon who had been consecrated II Bishop of South Carolina on 15 Oct. 1812, was born in 1811 and likewise baptized in Zion. He would grow up to be a physician, marrying Mary Elizabeth Lawton, a cousin of Winborn Benjamin Lawton whom his sister Sarah married, settling in nearby Robertville where he practiced medicine. The Rev. Philip Mathews also attended the 29th Convention of the Diocese in Charleston in Feb 1817, reporting 3 baptisms and 1 marriage in Zion Chapel during the preceding year.

In 1833 the Rt. Rev. Nathaniel Bowen, III Bishop of South Carolina, consecrated Zion Chapel, it having been, the record rather cryptically says "thrown out of use as to the worship for which it had been originally erected", but now happily recovered. The handsome Eucharistic chalices were acquired the following year, 1834.

In 1839 the long rectorship of the Rev. Philip Mathews came to an end, apparently with his death. His widow, Rebecca, lived on until September 1859. He was succeeded at Zion by the Rev. Alsop Parke Woodward who was Rector 1839-1853; he became a part of the Island aristocracy by marrying Sarah Lavinia, daughter of Squire William Pope of Coggins Point Plantation.

Zion Chapel of Ease

Stoney (1820-1870), a great-grandson of Captain Jack Stoney, builder of Zion Chapel, became Rector of Zion. He lived at Trimbleston Plantation on the mainland where his plantation medical office building still stands.

Diocesan records show that Divine Services were regularly held in Zion Church until November 1861 when the invasion of the Island by federal armed forces necessitated the flight of the Island's white population. When the Rev. Dr. Stoney was able to return to his rectorship of the Church of the Cross in Bluffton in 1867, his report says that Zion Chapel, having been built of wood, had entirely disappeared, its Eucharistic silver and all its furnishings, altar, prayer desks, pulpit, pews stolen.

But worst of all for Zion was the fact that all of its members were dispersed, dispossessed of their homes and property, never to return to beautiful Hilton Head Island again.

Only the Cemetery remains.

the efforts of the Historical Society's members.

The Heritage Library Foundation, a 1997 addition to the island scene, operates The Heritage Library on the south end of Hilton Head, on the third floor of the Courtyard Building at the corner of Office Park Road and Greenwood Drive. Visitors to this research center, open to the public for a nominal fee, may access books, periodicals and manuscripts dealing with a wide array of historical subjects from local to international in scope. Organized to house a collection of genealogical books and papers, it has grown into a major research center for general history research as well as the more traditional ancestor searches.

In commenting on the continuing mission of the combined organizations Altstaetter recognized the distinguished work of Dr. Peeples, President of the Historical Society for the last 31 years. He expressed how proud and privileged the Foundation members were to have been selected by the members of the Historical Society as their new home. He stated that the Foundation officers, directors, volunteers and members feel a deep sense of responsibility to those who have gone before in carrying on the important work of historic preservation here in the Lowcountry.

first Dutch ships in 1624 at a beautiful bay where Hudson's river spills into the Atlantic Ocean adjacent to "a certain island named Manathans" somewhere north of England's Virginia Colony but south of the Massachusetts colonies: and its surrender in 1664 to the forces of the Duke of York. The Dutch being meticulous record keepers, some 12,000 pages survived the ravages of man and time to reach the present day. The section on the travels of the documents back and forth across the Atlantic makes clear the fact that any survived is nothing short of a miracle.

The author clearly enjoys his sojourn into the past as much as do the members of Charles Gehring's team of researchers. The time and effort of Mr. Shorto and his dedication to bringing the story of the these earliest Americans to life comes through loud and clear.

In addition to his work at the New York State Library, his research took him to Amsterdam and The Hague, to London, to East Anglia, to Harvard University, to the islands of the Caribbean, to Africa and the Mediterranean. Such is the sweep of this saga of an island at the center of the world.

Why, you may ask, haven't we heard the basics of this story before. If the Dutch colony of New Netherlands played such an important role in the formation of what became the United States of America, why are the history books so silent. Two reason are suggested by the author. First, the records were written in the Dutch language,17th Century Dutch at that, and second, more importantly "the winners write the history." In this adventure "the winners" were English.

This work is anything but a dry, staid history full of odd sounding names and old dates of little or no current relevance. If you once take up The Island at the Center of the World, you won't put it down til the last page is turned. In the process you'll find out, among other things, why we eat "cookies" instead of English "biscuits;" where "cole slaw" came from; and why the American justice system has "District Attorneys." You will discover who crafted the first American log cabins.

You'll learn that the religious freedom and tolerance for the rights of the individual we prize so highly today is owed more to the stalwart inhabitants of New Amsterdam than to the fierce Puritans of New England or the planters of the Virginia Colony.

The Island at the Center of the World is a recent addition to the shelves of The Heritage Library.
