ABBEVILLE, S. C.

Wednesday, May 3, 1876.

Great grandfather The Deceased Senator.

Senator Jerry Hollinshead died of consumption at his residence in this village, on last Saturday night, aged about 40 years. His death was not unexpected to any one except himself and though it was apparent to others that his days were numbered yet it was not until a day or two before his death that he became convinced as to his true condition. The deceased was a native of Napoleon, Ohio, and came South soon after the war, a protegee of Gov. R. K. Scott, who is also a native of that town. His history since he came to Abbeville is known to all. He first came here on the constabulary force, and brought himself into notice by his arrest of Tolbert, an escaped penitentiary convict. He afterwards filled a place in the revenue department at this place for a period. Six years ago he was elected Senator by the Republicans, and after the expiration of his term of four years, he was re-elected to the same position. He leaves a widow and three little children.

Religious services were held on Sunday afternoon at his late residence, at the conclusion of which his body was taken to Upper Long Cane cemetery. Our citizens were especially attentive in sending their vehicles for the free use of any who might not have conveyances.

Senator Hollinshead was an active partizan and fully identified with the Radical element in our county and State; hence it does not become us to speak of his political character. As the husband, father and friend he secured the friendship and love of his associates.

While considered a native of Napoleon, Ohio, in Henry County, I believe he was born in or near Texas, Ohio. Texas (not now in existence) at one time was a trading place on the Miami and Erie Canal, near Napoleon.

Actual date of his death was April 29th, 1876.

We see by the South Carolina papers that one of our former citizens, JERRY HOLLINSHEAD, has received the Republican nomination, to fill a vacancy in the State Senate, from the Abbeville District. JERRY H. is one of the best fellows that ever shouldered a musket and we are glad to state that he is morally certain of an election. The Abbeville Press, the Democratic paper printed at his home, says of his nomination that "Mr. HOLLINSHEAD by his discreet and conciliatory course has commended himself to the good wishes and kind offices of our people, and we believe that no other nominee of his party here could be more acceptable." All of which we are glad to know, and trust his Southern neighbors may learn to appreciate his many good qualities, even as we did when he lived among us.

TO-DAY elections will be held in three counties, Abbeville, Charleston and Georgetown, for Senators to fill the unexpired terms of Hons. H. J. Lomax and W. H. Mishaw, deceased, and Hon. J. H. Rainey, elected member of Congress.

The Senate has been short of these three Senators ever since the present session convened, and two of the counties, Abbeville and Georgetown, have been without representation. Charleston, having two Senators, has had one representative, Mr. Corbin, to look after her interests.

We know nothing of the qualifications, merits or demerits of the nominees, save in Abbeville. Mr. Hollinshead is a man of good ability, energetic and thoroughly progressive, and we believe the interests of his county will not suffer if entrusted to his keeping. Mr. Hollinshead is a good Republican, but not one of the blood and thunder order. In Charleston, the fight for the nomination has been warm and earnest, and probably the best man may have been selected, but of that we must be allowed to judge hereafter.

Georgetown will, of course, elect a Republican, and we hope a good man withal. It is not enough to be simply a partisan. If that is all the merit a man has, we much prefer that he should remain at home; we have had enough of that class already.

LETTER FROM ABBEVILLE C. H.

Meetings In Abbeville County -- School Celebration

ABBEVILLE C. H., July 6, 1872.

To the Editor of the Daily Union:

The Fourth of July passed off in Abbeville without anything of great importance transpiring. State Senator J. Hollinshead had quite a lively party at his residence, where several flags and other emblems of National Independence decorated the avenues. After some few remarks were made by those present in honor of the occasion, a national salute of thirty-seven guns was fired, giving more interest as well as noise to the occasion. A sumptuous feast was prepared and those present seemed to enjoy themselves hugely. At the close of the day, preparations were made for a start at daylight the following morning, to attend a mass meeting at Bordeau, a portion of this county, some twenty-two miles from this village. On arriving there a considerable number of citizens were found assembled, and speeches befitting the occasion were made. It was the intention of the party to return when the meeting was over, but all were prevailed upon to remain over until Saturday, and upon returning to the ground the following morning we were agreeably surprised to find one of the largest and most enthusiastic assemblages we every witnessed at a political meeting in any portion of this county. The meeting was composed of men, women and children. There were upwards of two hundred women present with their entire families, and many of them with their babes in their arms, seemed to take as much interest in the proceedings as the male portion.

Many Democrats were also present, and at one time made an onslaught in words on the one who was then speaking, but the attack was met with such replies as to quiet them almost instantly. It is well known that this portion of the county was the main centre of the numerous murders and whippings that took place here during the reign of Ku Kluxism, and some of those Democrats were obliged to acknowledge their relationship to that institution. The Cincinnati platform was terribly mangled during the meeting, and as our friend in Newberry appropriately remarked, that poor old Horace died there on Friday, apropos, he was buried mighty deep in Abbeville on Saturday,-- "peace be to his ashes." At 1 P.M. the meeting adjourned, after giving three times three hearty cheers for our good old Republican team, Grant and Wilson. On our return home we met another immense assemblage of men, women and children, who were evidently enjoying themselves, at a colored school celebration. There were several speeches made during the day, and the entire affair passed off very pleasantly. On our arrival home we were informed that Republican speakers would be present next week. Let them come; we will heartily welcome all worthy laborers in the cause.

Death of Senator Hollinshead.

A telegram was received in this city on Saturday night announcing the death of Jeremiah Hollinshead, state senator from Abbeville county. "Jerry," as he was familiarly called by his friends and acquaintances, had been declining in health for the past two years, and those who saw him during the last session of the legislature knew his sands of life had nearly run their course. During the Moses impeachment he was allowed to sit or recline upon the sofas of the senate. Before returning to his home he told the writer that he never expected to return to his legislative duties. Senator Hollinshead, without the advantage of commanding talents, was very popular, and a great favorite with all who knew him, in consequence of his genial and social nature. As a legislator he seldom or never did more than record his vote according to his conviction. The senate journal will be searched in vain for "points of order," privileged questions or other parliamentary clap trap chargeable to him.

Mr. Hollinshead was born in Wyandotte county, Ohio, in August, 1835, and was consequently in the forty-first year of his age. At the breaking out of the rebellion young Hollinshead enlisted as a private in the Fourteenth Ohio volunteers for three months, at the expiration of which he re-enlisted for the war in the Sixty-eighth Ohio, commanded by Colonel R. K. Scott, from whom he received the appointment of color bearer of his regiment, a position he held until the close of the war, except a brief interval in 1863, while he was recovering from a wound he received in the side from a minnie ball at the battle of Champion Hills.

After the election of General R. K. Scott as governor of this state, he persuaded his friend and former standard-bearer to come to this state, where he was appointed an agent in the freedmen's bureau, on Edisto island. He afterwards received an appointment from Capt. J. B. Hubbard, chief of the constabulary force, as his assistant. The discharge of the duties of this office brought him in contact with lawless men, who had set at defiance all law and authority under the new regime. It was at this time that Hollinshead arrested the notorious Jack Hackett, of Edgefield, and about sixty other equally desperate characters. He subsequently killed William Tolbert, of Abbeville, the murderer of Randolph, after being twice shot by the desperado. In 1869 Mr. Hollinshead was appointed internal revenue assessor at Abbeville, the duties of which he continued to discharge until 1871, when he was elected, by 700 majority, to succeed Hon. Hudson J. Lomax, senator of that county.

He was on the committee of education and chairman of the committee on militia, in which he took great pride, and was as proud of his title of colonel of the "bloody" or bloodless 11th South Carolina militia as he was of that of senator. He had few or no personal enemies, and his numerous friends will no doubt drop a tear over the bier of Jerry Hollinshead. The Abbeville senator left a young wife and a family of two or three children.
