Dear Milton and Frances,

It was so good hearing from you. I would have written sooner, but have been waiting for Allan to take pictures of some of my family pictures and have prints made. I know they're too late for the book but thought there might be some collection you or someone kept of such things. I also had him make a copy of Daddy about the time he graduated from college for young Adrian - also one of him with Mamma on their golden anniversary.

In the faded picture of the family, I seem to remember Daddy saying Cousin Jimmie and Aunt Mae were included but I'm not positive. Daddy was the youngest, I know.

You mentioned 'Thomas Roder' inheritance - Daddy told me that Thomas couldn't, or wouldn't, go but instead Nathaniel (brother or nephew?) went.

That is why I had Allan make a copy of the map hanging in our living room and the legend in the corner of it which dates it. It was printed and then pasted on cloth so that it folded easily. On one corner of the cloth backing in ink was Nathaniel's signature and this was the map of London he used when on the trip to collect the inheritance.

Incidentally, the Freese family was visiting us when I was growing up in East Point and Mr. Freese mentioned his mother was a Rhodes. In talking about the family, we got out the map (unframed then) and we were amazed to find their branch was direct from Nathaniel. I haven't kept up with the family but could probably find their names (3 girls) from our high school alumnae assoc.

I hope the reunion goes well and look forward to being there in the future but it won't be possible this year.

We've wondered about Betsy's husband and the Gulf War - Joe didn't have to go, though he was on alert to go for a week, and he's retiring this time next year. He's busy finishing his master's degree to get ready for the job market.

Our love to all -

Love,
Sarah
